A complex oncology clinical study report

The Customer
An international research company with strong presence in biologics and pharmaceuticals.

The Challenge
The client had outsourced the writing of a complex oncology Clinical Study Report (CSR) to a medical writing company. The client was not satisfied with the quality of the CSR draft as it contained several shortcomings including misinterpretation of study data and errors in presentation. Realizing that the study was too complex for the chosen medical writing team, the client looked for a reliable partner who could deliver and approached MakroCare for rewriting of the CSR; MakroCare had successfully completed several medical writing projects for the client in the past.

The Solution
MakroCare medical writing team took up the task of rewriting the CSR. The team has hands-on experience in writing several protocols, CSRs, and other regulatory documents, besides experience in writing manuscripts for medical journals.

Thanks to the robust medical writing process followed at MakroCare that involves drafting in conjunction with subject experts and biostatisticians, and a series of critical reviews including editorial reviews followed by a stringent quality review, MakroCare delivered a top notch CSR to client.
